Poetry.

Living Water.

He had drunk from fountains of pleasure,
And his thirst returned again;
He had drunk from broken cisterns,
And behold his work was vain.
And he said, "Life is a desert,
Hot and measureless and dry;
And I will not give me water,
Though I strive and faint and die."
Then he heard a voice make answer,
"Kiss and roll the stone away,
Sweet and precious springs lie hidden
In thy pathway every day."
And he said, his heart was sinful,
Very sinful was his speech;
"All the world well, I thirst for,
Are too deep for me to reach."
But the voice cried, "Hope and labor;
Doubt and infidelity is death;
Shape a clean and goodly vessel
With the precious blood of faith."
So he wrought and shaped the vessel,
Leaked, and let a well was there;
And he drew up living water
With the golden chalice of prayer.

My Neighbor.

My neighbor's departed—my neighbor—
My neighbor over the way,
Who called me betimes in the morning,
And laughed in the twilight day;
A golden breast had my neighbor,
And a golden throat had he,
As he called in the cool of the morning—
Called early and long to me.
In the elm he'd a swinging hammock,
Where he kept his children free;
He'd a wife that was careful and sober—
The soberest wife alive.
But never a care had my neighbor;
As he flashed like a flame in the tree,
Or hidden day-long in the maple,
He poured out his heart to me.
Exultant and sweet was the story,
And he told it from morning till night,
All over and over he told it—
The tale of his tuneful ditty;
Ah, many a time, as I listened,
I was weary and sick—I was sad—
But all the long day, as I listened,
My neighbor—my neighbor was glad—
But gone, alas! is my neighbor,
To a country I never shall see;
In the sunny south land where he lingered,
I doubt if he thinks about me;
But he is my neighbor I'm sighing,
As I look and I listen all day,
For robin—the dear "golden robin"
That sang to me over the way.

Selected Tale.

THE ROMANCE OF INDIAN PASS.

Were you never in Indian Pass?
Then let me tell you of it:
Seventy miles west by south from Denver, the trail from the Fairplay Road crosses a great spur of the great Rocky range, as it runs toward Sunrise Valley, and at its highest point, where it runs along the face of a stu-
pendous precipice, a pathway five feet wide, with a thousand yards of sheer descent to the valley's bottom upon the one hand, and half a thousand upward to the beetling, dizzy mountain summit upon the other, is Indian Pass.
From it one may view the whole
wild country; Long's Peak to the north, Pike's Peak to the south, the Giant's Castle, the Devil's Ledge, the long line of bloody rocks and the far-away sea-like level of the plains to the east; at your feet Sunrise Valley, with a cluster of settlers' cabins, but all else nature, rugged and unbroken—
the heart of the Rocky Mountains.
Mountaineers and Indians ride
through the pass; tourists and strangers walk, and shudder as they gaze.
In Sunrise Valley lived three families—the Donaldsons, Jeromes and Turners—all Americans. They had found a home there years before, and were engaged in cattle raising and hunting. Their market was by the south road to Pueblo. Seldom it happened that they crossed Indian Pass, and yet in case of necessity it was available as the nearest route to the world without.
Among this little colony and members of it were Jennie Donaldson, a girl of eighteen, and Ralph Jerome, a man of twenty-five, and her lover.
That this should be so seemed right.
They were the only young people in the valley; they had known each other for years. Ralph was a brave hunter, a tender and true man; Jennie was a beautiful mountain girl. Their love was as natural as the world about; and as pure and sweet. Yet, simple children that they were, no word of this had ever passed between them. They rode together, walked together, sometimes worked together, and Jerome always galloped across the three miles
that separated their homes to see old Jim Donaldson on Sunday evening, and all with him in the gloaming, talking
of cattle, and politics, and wood life,
while Jennie fitted about near them,
or sat at her father's feet; but no promise had been sought or given—
their love satisfied them.
Matters stood thus when, one September day, a stranger rode into the little park and offered Ralph Jerome

the chance of his life, to act as guide for a United States Survey party about to start through the mountains to the south.
"I learn that you are thoroughly acquainted with this region," said Capt.
Judson, "and I want you. The work will occupy you fully two years, with both field and office duties, and if you prove yourself capable, will be but the stepping-stone to something better. Will you go?"
And Ralph, his face suddenly brightening with the realization of his dream
of years, said:
"Yes."
He bade old Jim Donaldson goodbye that night—and Jennie. And after the father had disappeared within his cabin door, leaving the two young people alone without, almost unconsciously Ralph drew the girl to his heart and held her there one lifeless moment; then, as if shocked at his own audacity, he kissed her and put her away.
"You will wait, Jennie darling?
You will remember and wait for me?"
And, for reply, the girl drew near again, and kissed him a second time.
Then she fled.
Two years! Two years of day and night—days of summer stillness and winter gloom; nights of summer beauty and winter gloom. One by one they passed, and September—the second September—came again.
Ralph Jerome returned—returned a man, in the full glory of his manhood,
a life-work happily begun, the future
bright with hope, and his great heart all aglow with love and longing. And then, upon the very eve of his homecoming, he saw his darling ride by accompanied by a stranger, "a fellow up
hunting" from Denver," his father said,
and all the world grew dark.
For a while it was hard to believe—
hard to admit that this beautiful, tantizing fairy—this girl of perfect face
and form, who laughed and chatted with him so gaily, day after day, while the elegantly-costumed huntsman, who ever accompanied her, looked on with admiring eyes—as was the Jennie who had kissed him good-bye.
But, as the autumn waned, poor
Ralph was forced to accept the fact.
It was the same Jennie, only sweeter,
more entrancing, more beguiling than ever; but still Jennie, blossomed into a girl.
Whether her old love was dead or not remained unknown. She treated Carl Conde even as she treated Ralph Jerome, holding both by her wondrous bonny and charm of manner, yet holding them at arm's length. Neither man could learn his fate, and even the heart of the mountaineer failed him
as the girl escaped his eager questioning again and again.
"Fool that I am!" muttered Jerome,
as he rode homeward, one November night, after an evening just without the gates of paradise; "fool that I am! I will give up the game. She does not love me—she cannot, or she would not tantalize me so. I will give her up; and yet, my God, it will kill me! Oh, Jennie, my darling, my darling!"
Affairs were thus tangled, when,
one day, a rumor came to Sunrise Valley that the Uncompaghe Indians were upon the warpath.
Dave McFarland, an old guide and
trapper, brought the unwelcome news
and gave the warning.
"To'd best let the wimmin folks go down to Pueblo," said he. "Ef the reds are out, we kin take keer of the cabins better here alone; an' ef it's all a mistake, that'd be no harm
done, any way."
Carl Conde announced his intention of returning to Denver.
"He might fight and help fight, if there's fighting to be done," whispered Jennie, with a blush, to Mrs.
Jerome.
But the old lady was a little deaf
and did not hear her.
"If you are bound for the city, Mr.
Conde," said Ralph on the following morning, and before the women had departed, "let me advise you to go by Indian Pass. It is the shortest route, and in ten miles you will be on the Fairplay Road and safe. Should you take the Southern trail, however, you will have thirty miles of dangerous road to cover, your way does not lie toward Pueblo, after you leave the valley."
The other hesitated.
"I do not know the pass," said he,
"although I should prefer that route."
"I will guide you to the Fairplay Road," said Jerome, picking up his rifle. "It is not a long ride, and we need fear no Indians to-day."
"And I will go with you," said a sweet voice, behind them. "I wish to look for Indian Pass once more before I leave the valley."
It was Jennie Donaldson who spoke.
Both gentlemen opposed this plan;
but the willful beauty was determined,
and the result was that, an hour later,
Conde had bidden his friends good-bye,
and accompanied by Ralph and Jennie,
was riding rapidly along the trail toward the mountain pass.
As they climbed the rugged foothills and followed the winding road, mounting ever higher and higher, few words passed between them.
Conde was silent because of the sorrow in his heart; Jerome, because of the anger in his; and the girl, because she knew of both sorrow and anger, and could neither assuage nor appease.
The miles slipped away behind them, and, forced at length by the rugged steepness of the way to a slower pace, they laboriously climbed toward the pass itself.

Half a mile more would bring them to the summit. Then a real, a rapid gallop of an hour, and the Fairplay Road would be reached.
Ralph breathed easier. From the outset one thought had cheered him—
one bright hope had cheered him—the bitter hatred his heart held toward this city sportsman of fringed buckskin and silver buttons, who had sought to win his love from him. Jennie would ride back with him alone!
They came at last to the narrow causeway of the pass. Room for but one abreast here, and Jerome rode ahead, the girl next, and Conde behind. In this order they crept along the dizzy face of the mountain.
When they reached the summit, Jennie called a halt, and turned to view the outspread panorama before them, the glory of the scene brightening her beautiful eyes.
"See," cried she, with cheeks aglow—"see, Ralph! There is our home," and she pointed toward the valley beneath.
Her lover's heart gave a great bound.
"Our home, Jennie," said he, in a low, rapturous voice, forgetting all else, and leading toward his companion—"our home! Do you mean it?
Yours and—Ah, my God, the Indians!"
It was a cry of sudden agony, and as the man reeled in his saddle, the bright blood burst from his shoulder and ran in a trickling stream down the vetting arrow-shaft deeply buried in his flesh. The Indians were in the
pass!
The girl shuddered, while a great love and terror mingled in her white face; then, with the courage of her race, she sprang nimbly to the ground and caught Jerome in her arms, as he sank heavily from his seat.
"Oh, my darling! have they killed you?" And, with a strength almost superhuman, she tore the cruel barb
from his body and flung it from her.
"Live, Ralph—live! For I love you!
Quick! up and fight for me!"
She snatched a pistol from her bosom at the same moment, and fired it full in the face of a savage, who suddenly appeared before them. With a wild yell he threw both hands to his head, reeled and fell headlong over the ledge.
The sound revived the half-fainting mountaineer. With a new-born strength, he sprang upright, seized
his rifle and leveled it.
Thirty yards away, at the turn of the path before them, were the enemy—
a scouting party of half a score of Indians, who had come to view the valley from the pass.
At the sight of the man with weapon
ready, they uttered a chorus of fiendish cries, and filled the air with flying arrows.
The two horses were struck, but the ring of Ralph's rifle was answered by a human groan, and a second red-skin bit the dust. The others retreated behind the protecting wall of rock.
"Where is Conde?"
The girl turned. They were alone in the pass, but the distant clatter of hoofs, ringing fainter and fainter from the backward trail, answered her lover's question. She turned to him again, filled with rage and disgust.
"He has deserted us!"
"But," said Jerome, faintly, and his wound pained him to the very heart—"but he was your lover—you must go with him."
"Never, never!" cried the girl, in a sudden frenzy—"never my lover!
There is, there has been, but one—
and not he! Oh, Ralph, forgive me!
Do not send me away. If you cannot go, I will stay with you! Better to die here than to leave away from you! My darling, my one love, do not send me
away!"
Could mortal man resist such pleading? Ralph Jerome could not.
She bound his bleeding shoulder with bands torn from her dress, and through the long, dull November afternoon, these two kept watch and guard behind the dead horses, he
with rifle ever ready, who with pistol in either hand, both with a love that was beyond death in their hearts; and the cruel, cowardly Indians lay hidden and dared not expose themselves to the deadly aim of these children of the mountain.
And when at last, just as the light
was fading from the distant peak, and the shadows dark and chill were climbing up from the valley beneath,
old Dave, with five others, crept silently by, and fell with terrible force
upon the little band of redskins, literally sweeping them from the face of the cliff, the wounded man turned to Jennie, and laying his head upon her shoulder, said, softly:
"Kiss me, sweet; for now you are safe, and I can die!" and fainted dead
away.
It was a month before Jerome was out again; three months before his wounded shoulder was well; but what mattered it? Jennie loved him! And then when the spring time came again, and winter's snows were gone from the mountain, one glorious May day saw a wedding in Indian Pass,
and those who bore the principal parts therein were the same who held the Uncompaghe Indians at bay six months before.
But Carl Conde was not there.

He Was Not a Kicker.
Ben Ridgely, a Louisville, Ky., newspaper man, who for the first twenty years of his life, had been accustomed to feeding on champagne and diamond back terrapin, has for the past twenty years been having a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match
with the usual boarding-house spread,
and is still alive and well. One day, early in the spring, he went to his landlady with a complaint.
"Madam," he said, with a demi-
semi-quaver in his voice, and a piece of wetness in each eye about as big as a buckshot, "haven't I been a pretty good boarder for the two years I have been with you?"
"Why, Mr. Ridgely, of course you have. Only yesterday a lady asked me how long you had been a member of the Young Men's Christian Association," replied the lady in surprise.
"Yes, and when you gave us eggs
with feathers on, did I ever kick?"
"What's that?" stammered
the woman, thrown off her balance by the suddenness of the blow.
"And did I ever insist on your clipping their wings?"
"Sir, I don't—"
"And didn't I keep on, even though you let the butter wear its hair banged, when you knew I hated bangs?"
"Mr. Ridgely, this is going too—"
"And did I complain, when I found a button in my pie, because there wasn't any buttonhole in the flap?"
"Sir, I won't stand this an—"
"And did I report you to the Society of Prevention of Cruelty, when I picked that poor helpless cockroach
out of a biscuit?"
"Shut up, you—"
"Yes, and when I found a minnow
in the milk, did I ask you whether you milked your cow with a flaring pole or a seine?"
"Why—why—why—"
"Don't mention it, madam. When the steak was a little tough, was I one of the boarders who sent a buzz-saw
and a steam engine up to the house?"
"—I—"
"And did I ever object to paying for furniture repairs, because the bread was so heavy that when I swallowed it it knocked the bottom of the chair out?"
"You mean, good for nothing—"
"Don't get excited, madam. Did I ever inquire whether you drew your tea with a windlass or a chain pump?"
"Oh, you villain, you wretch,
you—"
"I hear you, madam, and I want to ask if I ever reflected on your inclination for asking if you had a putrel on that fly trap?"
"—Oh—oh—oh—oh—oh—"
"I ask, madam, did I ever do any of these things? And I answer by saying, 'Never, no never.' Therefore I want to know why in thunder, excuse my forcible language, please, when they bring me a plate of soup with a dish-rag in it, they don't bring along a pair of scissors to cut the darned thing up so a man won't choke on it.
That's all, madam."
When the lady was reconstituted, Ben was compelled to go out into the cold, cold world and get another boarding-house. Such is woman's inhumanity to man.
Origin of the "Rooster."
"Why, when and where was the rooster adopted as the political emblem?" The question quoted above and addressed to the editor of the Enquirer has been asked a thousand times recently. The question has been answered before, but for the benefit of those who do not understand the situation it can be answered again.
In 1812, after the Harrison campaign,
there was great doubt as to how Indiana had cast her vote. An editor named Chapman conducted the Democratic newspaper at Indianapolis, and as is often the case in boasting
over a victory, his editorial rejoicing
over the result was termed "crowing."
In a day or two, when some of the back counties were heard from, it seemed his crowing had been premature, and the Whig organ came out giving late returns showing Democratic defeat, and in the headline was
the expression
"Crow, Chapman, crow."
This was intended as a taunt, and must have been felt for a few more counties yet to hear from again turned the tide, and showed that the Democrats had won. It was then that the rival editor hoisted at the head of his columns a magnificent rooster and printed underneath it the words, "We crow."
It made a palpable hit. The passion for roosters spread, and from that day to this the bird immortalized by the Hoosier editor has been the emblem of political success.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
A Natural Barometer.
A curious barometer is said to be used by the removal of the Araucan-ian race which inhabits the southernmost province of Chili. It consists of the cast-off shell of a crab, which,
from its curious application, is called the "Barometro-Araucano." The dead shell is said to be extremely sensitive to atmospheric changes, remaining quite white in fair (dry) weather, but indicating the approach of a moist atmosphere by the appearance of small red spots, which grow both in number and in size as the moisture in the air increases, until finally, with the actual occurrence of rain, the shell becomes entirely red, and remains so throughout the rainy season.

Their First Quarrel.
Madame Bernhardt's first quarrel with her husband has never, we believe, been given to the public. As neither of the parties are in America
we violate no confidence in publishing
the facts.
Madame Bernhardt had lovingly opposed her husband's proposed tiger-
hunting expedition, fearing that harm would come to him; but he promised to be very careful, and got ready for the journey. At the last moment he came hurrying into Madame's apartment's and burst out with:
"Perfidious woman! You promised not to further oppose me, yet you have deliberately attempted to prevent my going."
"You mistake yourself," responded Bernhardt to sneeze.
"I mistake nothing," replied her husband warmly. "You know I dared not carry my gun uncovered through the streets, and you have deliberately stolen my beautiful green cloth gun-
case so as to keep me at home."
"It is not true, not true," screamed
the Madame hotly.
"I have the proof," yelled Mr.
Bernhardt, dancing around in rage.
"What have you?"
"My new green cloth dress."
"It is a lie," hissed the maddened husband. "It is my gun-case."
And so they parted.—[Phil. Call.
Roguish Cupid's Stratagem.
At a recent wedding reception in South Carolina a young lawyer begged leave to offer a new scheme of matrimony, which he believed would be beneficial. He proposed "that one man in the company should be selected president; that his president should be duly sworn to keep entirely secret
all communications that should be forwarded to him in his official department that night, and that each unmarried gentleman or lady should write his or her name on a piece of paper and under it the name of the person they wished to marry; then hand it to the president for inspection, and if any gentleman and lady had reciprocally chosen each other the president was to inform each of the result, and those who have not been reciprocal in their choice kept entirely quiet."
After the appointment of the president communications were accordingly handed up to the chair, and it was found that twelve young ladies and gentlemen had made reciprocal choices,
but whom they had chosen remained a secret to all but themselves and the president.
I was passing through the same place a few days ago, and was informed that eleven of the twelve matches had been solemnized, and that the young gentlemen of eight couples of the eleven had declared that their difficulty was so great that they certainly should not have addressed their respective wives if the above scheme
had not been introduced.—[Charle-

A Successful Jockey.
Mr. John Hammond, the owner of the English race horse St. Gatien, estimates his net winning on the turf in England during the present racing season at the enormous sum of $750,- 000. His winnings on the Derby alone were $150,000, and those of the last two or three years amounted to $400,000. Hammond's proudest boast is that twenty years ago he was employed in cleaning boots outside of a sporting hotel at Epsom. He began his career on the turf as a stable boy, next became a jockey, and when he grew too heavy to ride he became a trotter. He pursued his calling until he became financially strong enough to be an investor on his own account.—
He bought St. Gatien and Florence for $15,000, and won more than ten times that amount with each animal,
in this one season, capturing the Derby, the Manchester cup, the Ascot gold race, the Cesarewitch and a dozen minor events.—[Washington Star.

the cure complete by giving the system health

The Newport Mercury.

JOHN J. SANBORN, Editor and Proprietor.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1884.

New York and Massachusetts have a valuation exceeding that of the entire South by $800,000, and yet the South with the aid of New York city alone, rules the entire nation, and has just elected Grover Cleveland President. It will also fill the great majority of all the offices during the next four years.

When the so called independent journalists, after violating for weeks and months all the principles of morality, and all the instincts of pure and noble nature, ask the public to again give them their confidence, they show a depth of depravity that should be shunned by all who have any respect for virtue.

It is amusing to see with what avidity the independent crowd present their claims to the President-elect. They are as if possible more hungry for office than the Democrats. They want it distinctly understood that they do not propose to take back victims from the back door of the White House. They propose to sit near the head of the table.

The Democrats for revenue only begin to fear that Cleveland and not Hendricks will be President in fact as well as in name. They fear that he will hardly make vacancies enough to suit their hungry desires. If Cleveland carries out the principles of civil service reform as inaugurated by President Arthur he will receive the support of every good Republican in the land.

There is one territory that will not be likely to get into the Union under a Democratic administration and that is Dakota. It has a population of nearly 600,000 people, and cast at the late election some 85,000 votes, but unfortunately only 15,000 of them were cast for the Democratic candidate. This territory has a population more than three times as great as that of the State of Delaware and more than double that of Florida and yet she cannot be admitted to the sisterhood of states because the territory is made up of Republican voters. This is an outrage that there should be some means of remedying.

The attempt on the part of the Democrats of Illinois to steal a State Senator so that as the fruit of such an ill gotten gain they may steal a United States Senator is one of the most outrageous proceedings that have ever taken place in this campaign. The judges of the election exactly reversed the vote in one district which is largely Republican. So bunglingly did they do their work that it was impossible not to detect the changing of the figures. They gave the Republican candidate in one district only two hundred votes and already the affidavits of over three hundred electors have been presented who testify that they voted the Republican ticket in full. The judges and clerks in that district have been indicted for fraud.

A Virginian who has lately been visiting friends in Rhode Island incidentally tells how the south is made "solid." He is a red hot Democrat and believes that the practice is all right. He says there is no longer any need of shooting "niggers." They have better way. On the morning of the election, when the colored men come up to vote, they are half a dozen or so in each precinct on the charge of illegal registration, and put them in the lock-up for the day. That is warning enough for the others and they stay away. At night after the election is over the imprisoned men are released, no case being found against them. The arrest has done its work. These men have been deprived of their vote and thrown into prison on false charges, but they have no remedy. The men that practice these outrages are the men who are to rule this nation for the next four years.

It is curious to note the falling off of the vote in many of the Southern States. Nearly every one of the number cast a smaller vote this year than was cast in 1880, while in every northern state the vote was much larger than it was at that time. In Georgia in 1880 there were 821,438 white males, and this state claims a large increase in population since then. At the late election it cast 142,843 votes leaving 178,595 voters who did not deem it expedient to go to the polls. This is based on the population of 1880. The voting population of that State to day cannot be less than 400,000 which would leave only about one third of the people of the state to do the voting. Does any one believe that there was or is free suffrage in that State? South Carolina, Louisiana and Mississippi make even a worse showing than Georgia. In these states considerably less than one third of the people do the voting for the whole. What would be thought of such a showing in the South?

In New Haven Thursday night at the Republican primaries held preparatory to the city election, the independents were shut out. Quite a number of these individuals who acknowledged that they had voted for Cleveland attempted to sneak back into the Republican fold, but they were denied the privilege of participating in any way whatever in the caucuses. The vote was unanimous for their expulsion. No man who voted against Haine could secure recognition. This is right and we hope to see the example set by the New Haven Republicans carried out in every city and town in the land. Men who will desert the party and turn traitors in time of need are not the men to admit to fellowship afterwards. The men who voted the Democratic ticket at the late election have no more right to claim fellowship in the Republican party than have the lifelong Democrats, and if they had half the manhood of the life-long Democrats they would stay in the party where they have allied themselves. The Republican party has no further use for them.

Mayor Doyle had a walk over Tuesday in Providence where he was elected mayor for the sixteenth time. Evidently Providence knows a good man when she finds him and proposes to hang to him. Doyle received 4,780 votes to 2,869 for Charles E. Gorman the Democratic candidate. All the other Republican officers were elected by large majorities. Thanks to the St. John party which has succeeded in making most of the friends of temperance in the state disgusted with their party the majority in favor of granting liquor licenses was greater than it has been for many years before, amounting this year to 1503. The majority of the City Council chosen in favor of some kind of terminal facilities bill, not necessarily the Goddard plan, but probably some compromise scheme. The following are the members of the Board of Aldermen chosen, which is probably the strongest board the city has had for years: Ward 1, Stillman White, 2, Geo. E. Martin, 3, Thomas B. Ross, 4, Charles F. Sampson beating Alderman D. Russell Brown, 5, John W. Briggs, 6, Geo. H. Burnham, 7, Gilbert F. Robbins, 8, William B. Greene, beating the old war horse Henry C. Clark, 9, Henry T. Root, by 3 majority over Alderman John Mc Williams chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, 10, John M. Brennan, the only Democrat on the board. In the Common Council there are ten Democrats and thirty Republicans.

The whiskey distillers are in a bad fix. During the current fiscal year, some thirty odd millions of gallons of whiskey must be withdrawn from bond and exported, or the tax of 90 cents a gallon must be paid. The export of this quantity, if possible, would involve an immense loss, and if thrown upon our market, the price would fall far below the tax upon the product. The loss it is said, would involve the failure of many banks, which have made heavy loans to the distillers upon the whiskey as security. It will be remembered that an effort was made at the last session of congress to avert the catastrophe, by an extension of the time within which the liquor should be withdrawn from bond, but after a full discussion of the matter, the house refused to give the desired relief. The ground taken was that the distillers had had ample warning of what was coming and could have prepared for it by a curtailment of their production. They knew the taxes must be paid after the three years of grace had expired, and in the exercise of ordinary prudence they might have so regulated the manufacture as to have secured a ready and profitable sale of the amount in bond. The present congress will hardly reverse its action. What the next will do is more problematical.

Medical examinations which have been made into the epidemic in Southwestern Virginia which resembles cholera, discloses the fact that it is due to the concentrated mineral solutions in the water which the people of the freestone regions have been drinking from their falling springs. The reason there were so few deaths in the limestone regions is said to be because the lime in the water counteracted the poisonous mineral properties.

Investments in cattle ranches seem to be growing in favor with American capitalists now that the millionaires of Great Britain have invested so largely in the same direction. The largest cattle ranch in the United States under one management is that of Capt. Richard King, of Texas, comprising 800,000 acres, all under fence, with nearly 200,000 head of cattle, horses and sheep. This property has recently been sold to a New York corporation at a price said to be $6,500,000.

According to reports the fall undertook to wag the dog and it didn't work. In other words Vice President elect Hendricks undertook to give President elect Cleveland some advice the other day and the President elect informed the Vice President elect that when he wanted his advice he would ask for it. Score one for Grover.

It is said that Vanderbilt gave in different ways more than half the money spent by the Democratic National Committee during the late campaign. Vanderbilt knows who can be the most easily controlled by the boss monopolist of the country.

One of the leading Mugwumps of New Haven in the late campaign was Rev. Thomas A. Bacon of the Dwight Place Congregational Church. Since the election there has been such a feeling of coolness towards him by his church that he has been forced to hand in his resignation.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and her daughter, Miss Maud Howe, will next week go to New Orleans for the winter, where Mrs. Howe will be at the head of the Women's Department of the exposition.

Cabinet business is lively. At least Gov. Cleveland thinks so. He has had at least fifty Cabinets made for him and the returns are not all in yet.

There was a Democratic torch-light procession in Hickman, Ky., last week and before it got through a large part of the town was in ashes.

A young man named Will Jones was struck by a skyrocket at a Democratic jollification at Jamestown, O., and instantly killed.

Bishop I. W. Wiley, of the M. E. Church, died at Foochow, China, while on an Episcopal visit to the mission in Japan and China.

The new dispatch boat Dolphin, whose shaft was broken during her trial trip in the Sound last week, Thursday, was towed in New York Saturday night. It is expected that a new shaft will be in position within two weeks, when another trial will be made.

INTERESTING GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL.

At the Coming New Order of Things—Cleveland's Cabinet—Hendricks, Etc.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27, 1884. Since the dust of the Presidential contest has settled and a view of the future has been taken, it is clear that the Capital City is to have a period of rare experience. There must be changes, changes on every side, and the student of political history will be as much interested in watching the bearing of the party in adversity as in following the course of the Democracy under its new and unaccustomed burdens. At any rate, the city for a while will be more brilliant, more animated, more agitated, and more prosperous perhaps than it has ever been before.

If Mr. Haine had been elected, a great many strangers would have come to his inauguration, and a goodly number of office hunters would have remained here for some time afterwards. But many more people will come in consequence of Mr. Cleveland's election. The vast attendance that will mark the inauguration of a Democratic President, and the size of the army of office seekers that will be here afterward, can scarcely be estimated. It will be the only chance within the memory of the present generation affording such a spectacle. Young Democracy and old Democracy will alike be here to witness it.

Rooms have already been engaged for Gov. Cleveland and his party from the latter part of February until the 14th, at the Arlington hotel. The suite of rooms consist of a parlor and three bed rooms, and have been occupied in turn by Duke Alexis, Prince of Wales, Emperor Dom Pedro, of Brazil, Gen. Grant and Senator Conkling.

What is known as the red parlor of the White House, a distinguished military tribunal is now trying Gen. Swain. One major general, six brigadiers, and six colonels occupy the long table. The trial attracts a good deal of attention, the charges are numerous, and it is the first time in the history of the country that a brigadier general has been court-martialed in time of peace.

President Arthur is discussing appointments with his advisers, and getting up his message to Congress. Cabinet officers and heads of bureaus are busy preparing their annual reports to be submitted to Congress, and the representatives of the three great Asiatic Inter-oceanic transit projects are here awaiting Congress with their several schemes. Signs at the Capitol indicate the near approach of the session, and the returning statesmen will find the appearance of the building much changed inside and out. Various improvements have been made during the vacation, but those which show most handsomely are the new terraces and grand marble stairway approaches to the Senate and House wings. These are not quite completed yet, but will be by the opening of Congress next Monday week.

Department clerks feel that their chances for retention of office are meagre under any Democratic President, but they are gleaming some consolation from the fact that the President-elect is Cleveland and not Hendricks. The latter they think would sweep the Department like a cyclone if anything should happen to Mr. Cleveland. If he would not leave a Republican man or woman in office, they allege. They credit Mr. Hendricks with having said once if he could have his way, he would throw all the women out of the Departments.

The gossips are active in explaining Mr. Cleveland's position on civil service reform, in fixing up Mr. Cleveland's cabinet, and in marrying Mr. Cleveland. Since their failure to marry first Tilden and then Arthur, some doubts are expressed about their succeeding any better with the bachelor President-elect.

The Democracy went out of power with a bachelor President, and after a quarter of a century, it is about to come back with another. But the Presidential household must have a mistress, and it is said that Mrs. Hoyt, a sister of Gov. Cleveland, will assume the position. The chief duty of the lady of the White House is to be agreeable, amiable, and cordial. Society here is more Democratic than at any other large National Capital. It is necessarily so, for no body stays here long enough to make a court circle. The people like to go to the White House, and the less formality they meet there, the better they are pleased.

The gossip about Cleveland's cabinet has given several prominent gentlemen a chance to decline portfolios that were not tendered them. Mr. Bayard and Mr. Randall, for instance. The latter as the leader of the Democratic majority in the House, will wield an immense influence under the smile of a favorable administration. No man would exchange this prospect for a Cabinet office.

A large number of prominent physicians, sanitarians and health officers from various cities among others Boston, Buffalo, New Haven and Philadelphia, met at the offices of the health board, New York, Thursday, to consult about the threatened danger of a cholera epidemic from abroad, and the best means of barring it out. The cholera was discussed in all its phases, and plans formulated upon which to keep it out of our cities, if it cannot be kept away from our shores. A circular to the health boards of all communities, prescribing essential precautions, will be issued as the first fruit of the conference.

Another cause of Mr. Haine's defeat in New York has been found in the fact that the city post office was kept open on election day so that the clerks could not vote, and it is intimated that this was done with the approval of Mr. Arthur. To this Postmaster General Hutton simply replies that there is no law authorizing him to close the post office on election day.

The Royal and Ammoniacal and Short Weight Baking Powder.

Views of the Senate Chemical of Maine. I have procured in our open market and analyzed a sample of Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, and the Royal Baking Powder.

Cleveland's Powder I find to be composed of 25 cts. pure, whole-some material, its property combined for producing the maximum of gas, and it is in every respect a healthy and desirable article. The Royal Baking Powder I find to be more complicated in composition, and while the material it is made from is fairly good, it contains one ingredient that should not enter into the composition of any baking powder, namely: Carbonate of Ammonia. This is a strong, but, as yet for human consumption, and is unobjectionable that this chemical should be used when it is so well known to be injurious to health in anything used for food. In comparison on these should be no hesitation in choosing Cleveland's Baking Powder for purity and wholesomeness.

Cleveland's Powder gives off its gas slowly and evenly, while the Royal passes off much quicker. It is perhaps needless to say that in this respect the Cleveland Powder has the advantage. The samples of the Royal Powder, which I have carefully weighed, are almost invariably short weight, from 1.8 to 1.2 oz., while the Cleveland Powder holds full weight.

A Change in English Opinion.

A sudden, rapid, and significant change is going on in the minds of people on the whole subject of free-trade and protectionism. The Fair-trade movement of a year or two since was laughed at as a poor exoteric sort of thing, doomed to perish early. The fact is, that though not much of it was apparent at any time, it was the only spontaneous growth of the popular mind that we have witnessed for years, the temperance movement excepted. Right or wrong, wise or foolish, it bred in the most natural way in thousands of impoverished houses. More or less silently, it has gone on breeding ever since; and now, we have not the smallest doubt that the working classes in many a great "centre of industry" are losing all faith in free-trade, and may not improbably be found demonstrating on that subject too long. This is a very important matter; and we are persuaded that from this time forward, unless the trade of the country, takes a very considerable turn for the better, we shall hear more and more of it.—St. James Budget.

The First Fruits.

Two prominent Democrats were noticed in close conversation the other day with a very prominent Northern Republican. The gist of their conversation was as to how Northerners should be treated after the success of the Democratic candidates, National, State and county. They said that it was not proposed to banish Northerners immediately, but they should be subjected to a gradual emancipation; the most violent and pronounced Republicans should go first, that others should be allowed to remain until they settle up their accounts. "How is that to be brought about?" said the Northern man. "Very easily," said the Democrat, "the curfew shall be tolled at 9 o'clock P. M., and all Northern light shall be extinguished. Negroes shall be allowed to walk, as usual, without tickets. We suppose that Northern men who have become identified with the Democratic party will have their privileges extended. Who will apply next?"

Gen. Butler says that the People's party is not dead yet. The elections in the new aldermanic districts in Boston, he says, will be illegal, as the act was not submitted to, or accepted by the people, and that by his advice the People's party will vote for a full aldermanic ticket according to the old law. If the Supreme Court holds that his point is good the People's party will demand the unseating of the other Aldermen and take the full Board to themselves. The city solicitor has the matter under advisement and will decide whether the vote shall be according to the old law or the new law. When Gen. Butler was Governor he vetoed a similar aldermanic district bill for Boston, but Gov. Robinson unhesitatingly signed it when passed by the last legislature.

A site has been selected in Washington for the Garfield statue; it is in the circle at the foot of the Capitol grounds, at the intersection of First street and Maryland avenue, S. W.

An effort will be made to have Mr. Cleveland become the guest of Hon. W. W. Corcoran when he reaches Washington. Mr. Corcoran entertained Mr. Buchanan when he took the oath of office, and desires to perform the same service for Mr. Cleveland.

"My Mother

Has been using your Thacker Blood Bitters as a liver remedy and finds them efficacious." Chas. L. Amesworth, at Vance Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

Newspaper man, like chickens, have to scratch for a living.

Proved a Big Benefit.

"Has magical pain killing and healing properties. Half of a fifty-cent bottle cured me of rheumatism and a cold that had settled in my back. Feel as well as I ever did in my life." Otto J. Doeberly, prop'r Holland City News, Holland, Mich., speaking for Thomas' Electric Oil.

The girls want the papers, of course—for court reports and marry-time news.

How About the Dose.

Many people before purchasing a medicine naturally inquire the size of the dose and the strength of it. In using Thacker Blood Bitters a teaspoonful for the little ones and two tea-spoonfuls for grown folks are all that is necessary at one time. This magnificent medicine is not only economical but very pleasant to the taste.

True to his collar—The editor who is always faithful to his cause.

One reason why Huxey's (Kidney and Liver) Bitters is so popular for the cure of diseases of the kidneys, liver and bladder, is that it shows immediate improvement in the condition of the patient and recovery is steady and certain. Its cures have been so wonderful that physicians of all schools prescribe it in their practice.

A New York proof-reader was found dead the other day. All the editors are suspected.

The aim of life is action; not a thought.

New Jersey Wine Sent to Europe.

Mr. Spoor, of New Jersey, has a reputation extending over the whole Union and in Europe as being a reliable producer of pure wines. His Superior Grape Wine is ordered by families in London, and Paris for its superior medicinal virtues, and its blood making quality, owing to the iron contained in the soil in which the vines grow. For sale by Casswell, Hazard & Co., and Casswell, Massey & Co.

A man used to vicissitudes is not easily dejected.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills contain no calomel, nor any injurious substance whatever. They combine curative vegetable properties only.

To him who lives well, every form of life is good.

That weak back or pain in the side or hips you will find immediately relieved when a Hop-Plaster is applied. It strengthens the muscles, giving the ability to do hard work without suffering. Take none but this, it's more.

Every spendthrift to passion is debtor to thought.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE

Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is Excellent in Lung Troubles.

Dr. ESCOFF CALLOWAY, LaGrange, Geo. says: "I have used Scott's Emulsion with wonderful success in all Lung Troubles, also in cases of reference all around you. I have no equal in Summer Diarrhoea of children."

Some natures are diametrically opposed. What is kind to one is cruel to the other.

Do You Wish

To regain your health if you are all broken down and suffering from nervous prostration? I will tell you what cured me after suffering for months. I used two bottles of Sulphur Bitters, and now I am a well man.—C. Stiles, Hooker, Conn.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

From all Parts of the World.

It Was the Cat.
NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Margaret Miller, residing at 25 Marion street, was stabbed to-day by Daniel Shea, an occupant of the same house, and died while being taken to a hospital. Mrs. Miller's cat had disturbed Shea's nightly rest, and this morning he killed it. The woman bitterly upbraided him for his act, and he, becoming enraged, plunged his pocket knife into her neck. He was arrested.

Assaulted With A Revolver.
MONMOUTH, Ill., Nov. 25.—This morning, as B. T. O. Hubbard, the defaulting cashier of the First National Bank, was leaving the Court House, H. A. Thompson, from Texas, who sustained heavy losses by the bank's failure, stepped from a adjoining building and fired five shots at Hubbard from a revolver. One shot took effect. Thompson was arrested.

West Virginia's "Caverns."
ST. GEORGE, W. Va., Nov. 25.—The existence of a cavern in the neighborhood of Beaver Hole, on Cheat river, has been known for years; but it was never explored until the past week, when a party of men devoted a day to an examination of the cave. It proves to be a remarkable cavern, or rather a series of caverns, for there are five of them, one above the other. The lower one was explored a distance of a mile, and the upper one two miles. There is a small stream in the lower one, but the upper one is comparatively dry. The rooms are large and have evidently been cleared of debris at some former period. In one evidence of a fire was found, and the remains of houses, which were brought out and will be sent to an antiquarian for identification. The cave is almost on the line of the new West Virginia Central Railroad, of which James G. Blaine, Steve Elkins, W. H. Barrow and Senator E. Gorman are stockholders and directors.

Yellow Fever.
PANAMA, Nov. 25.—Mr. Houbert of the Canal Company, died of yellow fever on Tuesday evening. He is the eleventh officer of the now-celebrated Digley expedition who has died within a year of arrival. So far there have been eleven deaths for thirty-three arrivals. Mr. Parcher, another canal officer, it is reported died of the same fever a week ago.

National G. A. R. Encampment.
PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 25.—It is estimated that 20,000 to 25,000 visitors will attend the National Encampment G. A. R. Therefore all accommodations the city can furnish will be secured, and the camp will be provided with 500 tents in the eastern promenade, calculated to accommodate 5000 men. Arrangements will be made to enter for them on the ground. So far as desired the Old Orchard hotels will also be in reserve, and the summer hotels on the islands. The committee are confident of accommodating all who come.

President Arthur's Message.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—From remarks dropped by those nearest the President, it is evident that he is determined that his forthcoming message shall not only be the ablest and clearest of the administration, but one of the most elaborate State documents ever issued in the capital—one that shall mark grandly the temporary exit of the party from the White House. The President is known to cherish an intense interest in the Senatorial contest in New York, and it is also hinted that his message will contain some wholesale advice applicable to the action of the Legislature of that State.

Trampled to Death.
SALAMANCA, N. Y., Nov. 26.—The Rev. G. C. Smith, of Ellington, Chautauque County, has a family horse which is blind. Yesterday his twelve year old son, Theodore, was leading the horse to water and on the way slipped and fell. The horse, being unable to see him, set one of his feet on the boy's head, crushing it and killing him almost instantly.

Will Again Raid Oklahoma.
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26.—Advises from Kansas say another company is now forming, with headquarters at Emporia, for the purpose of establishing settlements in Oklahoma. Hunnell, a town on the border of Kansas and Indian Territory, is to be the rallying point, and five hundred invaders are expected to arrive there in the course of a week. The Indians are said to be greatly disturbed at the condition of things in the Territory, and are committing depredations on the property of white men who are in the Territory by the sanction of law. Recent murders of Indians will be considered a white man in the Chickasaw Nation without provocation.

Preparing for March 4.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—A meeting of certain members of the National Committee with the Central Committee here will be held either to day or Friday to arrange for the inauguration ceremonies. It has been customary for Democrats to unite with Republicans in these ceremonies, highly considering it a national and not a party affair, and the Republicans have expressed their willingness to aid the Democrats on the 4th of March in making a display creditable to the city.

LIME BAKING POWDERS.

Why the "Royal" is Absolutely Pure.

Analysis shows the presence of Tartrate of Lime in several brands of Baking Powder placed upon the market:

- "CLEVELAND'S" baking powder contains tartrate of lime.
- "HANSFORD'S" baking powder contains tartrate of lime.
- "TIP TOP" baking powder contains tartrate of lime.
- "HECKER'S" baking powder contains tartrate of lime.
- "DE LAND'S" baking powder contains tartrate of lime.
- "GILLET'S" baking powder contains tartrate of lime.

All BULK baking powders contain tartrate of lime. The presence of this substance in the above-named Baking Powders results from the use of inferior Cream of Tartar in their manufacture. The Cream of Tartar of the market, from which they are made, contains Tartrate of Lime in amounts varying from six to twenty per cent, and hence these powders contain this impurity as a foreign substance to a corresponding extent, which is of no value, but a positive detriment in any powder in which it is found.

NO LIME IN ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

The Royal Baking Powder is made from Cream of Tartar specially refined and prepared for its use by patent processes by which the Tartrate of Lime is totally eliminated.

This highly important result has been attained only with great care, labor, and expense. In money alone a quarter of a million dollars has been invested in patents, machinery, and appliances by which the crude Cream of Tartar, being procured direct from the wine districts of Europe and subjected in this country to these exclusive processes, is rendered entirely free, not only from the objectionable Tartrate of Lime, but from other foreign substances.

This adds greatly to the cost of manufacturing Royal Baking Powder; but, as all its other ingredients are selected and prepared with the same precise care, and regardless of labor or expense, an article is produced that is entirely free from any extraneous substance, and chemically pure in all respects.

No lime, earth, alum, or impurity of any kind can, by inadvertence or by the use of adulterated articles or otherwise, be introduced into the "Royal," and it contains no ingredients except those certified by the most eminent chemists necessary to make a pure, wholesome, and perfect Baking Powder.

It costs more to manufacture the Royal Baking Powder than any other, but it is, as shown by chemical analysis, the only "absolutely pure" Baking Powder made.

NEWPORT COUNTY NEWS.

BLOCK ISLAND.

DEMOCRATIC DEMONSTRATION.—Block Island Democrats had a grand jubilation last week Friday and Saturday evenings in honor of the election of Cleveland and Hendricks to the Presidency and Vice Presidency of the United States. About 8 o'clock Friday evening the Hayward Brass Band, J. F. Clark leader, arrived from Narragansett Pier by schooner, and were received by Capt. A. W. Mitchell and company, mounted, and escorted to the Union House on High Street. After the musicians had disposed of a good supper a line was formed in front of the hotel and at 9 o'clock proceeded, under the command of Marshall D. B. Dwyer, through Main street to the D. machine headquarters at Hon. J. T. Dodge's. Here the band played several excellent selections while the committee completed its plans for the grand demonstration of the following evening. At 11 o'clock they again fell into line and marched back to the Union House, where they were enthusiastically received by a large gathering of townspeople, ladies as well as gentlemen.

Sunday afternoon Capt. Waters and a large number of the Isaac Bell Association of Newport came over on the Geo. W. Danielson. They were met at the wharf by the local companies and the Hayward Band and escorted to the Highland House, Senator F. A. Rose and J. T. Dodge marching at the head of the line. Some 200 noniforms, brought over by the Newport visitors, were then distributed among the local Democrats after which the line was dismissed until 6:15, when they should be at the Union House to form the grand torchlight procession. At the hour named the line, composed of about 200 men, 81 of whom were mounted, was formed and under command of Marshall Edgar, First Lieut. Frank Littlefield, and Second Lieut. C. E. Rose, marched down High Street to Main, and thence through all the streets in the town.

Each street was crowded with citizens and every Democratic residence on the Island was illuminated. It was unquestionably the greatest demonstration ever witnessed on this island and one that will not soon be forgotten. Following are the names of those whose residences were illuminated: Main street—D. B. Dodge, Pequot House, Mrs. Stafford, Mrs. Durfee, Payne street—Mrs. C. W. Wiles, Swift Cottages, Mrs. U. B. Dodge, Post Office, Hon. J. T. Dodge, Mott Hall, Mrs. William Hecker, A. E. Dodge, Centre street—Mrs. L. Rose, Woonsocket House, Mrs. Jane Rose, Capt. Samuel Dodge, William Harrison, N. P. Littlefield, J. S. Ball, Jesse Steadman, Glines Wescott, Mrs. A. R. Mitchell, Hon. L. Littlefield, Cemetery street—Hon. R. S. Littlefield, Herman Mitchell, Mr. Sands, E. Smith, Mrs. Rose, Rose Cottage, Hon. B. B. Mitchell, Spring House, High street—Union House, L. A. Ball, A. W. Mitchell, C. E. Rose, Norwich House, Hon. F. A. Rose, A. M. Mitchell, Highland House, and Noah Dodge.

TIVERTON.

Mrs. Liberton Stillman Jewett, of Cambridge, met with an accident which might have proved serious had she fallen six inches farther, while in attempting to enter a carriage at the store of A. F. White, grocer. She made a misstep, and fell to the ground, almost directly under the horse's feet. She was able to leave for her home on Saturday morning by the early morning train.

On Friday evening, on Master Charles Westgate was crossing the Four Corners, it being very dark, he did not notice a wagon standing at the store, and ran against an iron extending from the wagon, and received quite a cut over his right eye. He is doing as well as can be expected.

Col. George N. Durfee with his family have removed to their town residence, Fall River, for the winter. The high winds of Sunday night were quite destructive to property in this part of the town. Mr. Leroy White's barn door was blown down; also the door of the Hon. H. Wilcox and the well curb of Mr. Charles Manchester. At Mr. Giles Chase's, a short distance from the Four Corners, windows were blown in. Considerable other damage was done. The wind hit the hardest between 10 and 11 o'clock and about midnight. Monday night was the coldest we have experienced this season, and winter is close upon us. Ice several inches thick was found on Tuesday morning, and the roads have frozen considerably.

PERSONAL. Mr. Philip Gray, of Aenslet, Mass., who has been in town for a few days, returned to New Bedford by train on Monday afternoon. Alexander Duffy, of Tiverton, left his team standing in front of a saloon at Globe village, Fall River, Tuesday afternoon, and two hours later he found that two fat hogs had been stolen from his wagon.

PORTSMOUTH.

The fall term of the Public School in District No. 1, Vaucluse, closed Friday, Nov. 21st, after a term of twelve weeks.

The following named pupils were present every day of the term, viz: Willie G. Brown, Mary Chase, Bertha Chase, Bessie A. Harrington, Annie E. P. Sisson, and Mame E. Irish. The following named pupils were at the head of their classes in spelling most times: First class—Bessie A. Harrington, Second class—Anna G. Murphy, Third class—Gertie S. Barker and Fourth class M. Agnes Murphy.

The prize offered by Mr. Wm. Hughes for most improvement in Penmanship was awarded to Annie E. P. Sisson. For best deportment and scholarship to Lizzie A. Smith. The following named pupils have earned a place upon the "Roll of Honor," viz: Gussie P. Allen, Gertie S. Barker, Walter Brown, Mary Chase, Bertha Chase, Rebecca A. Durfee, Barclay H. Gifford, Charles Gifford, Bessie A. Harrington, Charles M. Hughes, Mame E. Irish, Lottie P. Main, Anna G.

Murphy, John Karlson, Mabel W. Thomas, Gertie Thomas, Annie E. P. Sisson, Nettie J. Sherman, Lizzie A. Smith and Mattie Sherman.

The whole number registered was 89. Percentage of attendance 91 and average number belonging 30.

Thieves took ten bushels of apples and a 24 gallon cask of cider from the premises of James S. Chase a few nights since.

TRAINS.—Mrs. Patience White, having completed her visit to her son Benj. B. White, and her daughter Mrs. Harriet Rogers both of this town, has returned to her home in Little Compton.

The many friends of Miss Helen A. Lawton, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Borden Lawton, were much startled to learn on Monday morning, of her sudden death from diphtheria, in its worst form. Miss Lawton was much esteemed by all who knew her. She was a kind and devoted daughter and sister, possessing a character of worth.

On Sunday night last occurred one of the most terrific storms of wind and rain, that has been experienced in these parts for a long time.

The lectures in the Christian Church on the History and Origin of the First, English Bible, by the Rev. William Miller, of Swansea, Mass., were of every interesting character, showing much study, and covering a long period.

The subsequent lectures will be announced in due time.

The Public Schools will commence their winter term on Monday next.

Excepting "Vaucluse School" (Dist. No. 1) which will be postponed one week longer, on account of the recent cases of diphtheria.

In this school Mr. Wm. H. Gifford has been engaged to succeed Mr. Howard Champlin, who resigned at the close of the Fall term.

The Rev. Daniel I. Odell of East Providence, who was expected to officiate in St. Mary's Church, on Sunday last, was prevented by illness, and will be unable to be present tomorrow.

We learn by a private letter from Santa Barbara, Cal., that Thomas R. Hazard is enjoying very good health.

LITTLE COMPTON. Henry C. Field has sold his farm in the south east part of the town to Mr. Slocum of Portsmouth for $3000.

No arrests have yet been made of the parties suspected of breaking into the store of Mrs. Mary Richmond. The value of the goods stolen was about $50.

MIDDLETOWN.

Rev. W. A. Wright of this town and Rev. W. J. Smith of Providence, will exchange pulpits to-morrow.

NEW ENGLAND ITEMS.

RHODE ISLAND. The building lot in Palatka, Fla., on which stood the hotel of Mr. Daniel F. Larkin, of Watch Hill, recently destroyed by fire, has been sold to New York parties who, it is understood, will erect upon it a larger hotel than the one burned.

A correspondent of the Washington Capital writes: I am told that Senator Anthony's wine cellar in Providence was found to contain more than 6,000 bottles of wine when it was opened after his death. Mr. Anthony was supposed to be worth one or two hundred thousand dollars, but his fortune turned out to be over $800,000. He seems to have been something of a miser in his day during his life, although he was very liberal in remembering his friends after his death. He had great quantities of wine given to him, and he seems to have saved it all up.

Gracie Little Angel From earth to heaven has gone To meet her smiling Saviour,
Who has beckoned her to come. When on death's bed she lay at night Waiting patient for the call Pointing to heaven in happy smiles, And said loud Goss: it is all right.

While standing by her bed-side In the silence of the night, She looked me in the face and said, Green stand up on the floor, So I drew as she lay dead And she walked with my assistance Until she grew so faint She said to me, O take and lay me on the bed.

Rest on a darling Jesus hold you On his safe and sure heart. With his Angels that are dwelling These shall be a forever rest.

Peace thy darling, Jesus gives you Joy and happiness to come And when her soul is ended May we enter in that fold.

Gracie dear my only daughter How we miss you here to-night. But we change our tears to smiles Knowing Jesus dwells all things right.
